Biography

State Representative Michele Henson is a 39-year resident of DeKalb County, and a 28-year member of the Georgia General Assembly. Michele holds a bachelor's degree in sociology from the University of Miami. First elected in 1990, Michele has been a constant presence in our state government and is currently the longest serving female member of the Georgia House of Representatives.

In the Legislature, Michele is the vice chair of the DeKalb House Delegation and is a member of the Georgia General Assembly Women's Caucus, the Working Families Caucus and an associate member of the Georgia Legislative Black Caucus. In the Georgia House of Representatives, she serves on the Appropriations, Health & Human Services, Economic Development & Tourism and Small Business Development committees.

Michele is a fighter for affordable and accessible health care for all Georgians. Working in the dental field, Michele came to realize the growing need for children's dental coverage at the state level. In the legislature, Michele was able to get children's dental coverage added to the PeachCare program and has kept it there despite destructive budget cuts to many state run programs.

Michele is the only Jewish female in the State House. She sits on the board of the Anti-Defamation League and was instrumental in creating the Georgia Commission on the Holocaust and in opening of the Anne Frank Museum, located in Sandy Springs.

Michele has been active in her community since before she was elected as a state representative. Today, Michele serves on the boards of Art Station, PRISM (Pride Rings in Stone Mountain) and the Anti-Defamation League. She is active with other community groups, such as the Stone Mountain Women's Club, the League of Women Voters and the Memorial Drive Business Association. She is a constant presence in the community, holding town hall meetings to discuss local issues, such as cell phone towers and zoning issues. Michele also believes in being a bridge between her constituents and local elected officials, working hard in conjunction with county commissioners, her CEO and other county elected officials to find solutions to the challenges her constituents are facing.

Rep. Henson is a passionate voice for DeKalb County and truly lives by her slogan of "doing the right things, for the right reasons." Michele loves her community and looks forward to working hard for a stronger DeKalb for many years to come.
