

Rep. Margaret Kaiser
D-59

Biography

Margaret Kaiser represents House District 59---one of the most diverse, expansive, and exciting districts in the State. Sworn in on January 8, 2007, Representative Kaiser has a diverse range of experience that has prepared her to represent the citizens of the 59th District. She has an extensive education background, including a Bachelor of Arts degree in Liberal Studies from Emory University and a Certification in Health Policy from Georgia State University, just to name a few. While working towards some of her educational goals, she worked full-time in constituent affairs for Georgia's Secretary of State. Representative Kaiser also had the honor of working for the Carter Center in Public Information, and later worked for a year on The Atlanta Project before President Carter announced his inception. She continued in this position until leaving the Center.

Representative Kaiser currently serves on the following committees: Agriculture & Consumer Affairs, Appropriations, Health and & Human Services, and education. Her most recent appointments include the Music Industry Study Committee, the State Concussion Study Committee, Governor's Education Finance Study Committee and the National Conference of State Legislators (NCSL) Transportation Committee. .

Representative Kaiser is married to Eric Kaiser. Together, they manage three small businesses; Grant Central, Grant Central East Pizza, and Tomatillos. After the birth of their first son, Willem, they, along with their business partner, opened Cabbagetown Grill. After the birth of their second son, Ewan, Representative Kaiser became involved in the start-up of a Charter school in her neighborhood. When she began her service with the Charter school, Representative Kaiser sold her half of Cabbagetown Grill. Currently, she serves as President of her family's small business, Kaiser Dough and Pizza Concepts, and she remains active in her children's schools.

Through her vast range of experience, Representative Kaiser has gained an understanding of the concerns of downtown Atlantans, small business owners, school officials, and most importantly, Georgia families, and she is proud to represent the interests of House District 59.
