COVID-19: Unemployment Benefits

As part of the ‘Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act’ (CARES), unemployment benefits are expanded to help meet the unique employment needs brought on by COVID-19. The federal government will invest approximately $260 billion into the Unemployment Insurance Program and provide about $360 million to the U.S. Department of Labor for programs such as training, supportive services, and implementing paid leave requirements.

Under the existing unemployment benefit program, qualified Georgians can receive between $55 and $365 in weekly paid unemployment benefits. The maximum number of weeks a claim could be established is based on the seasonal adjusted unemployment rate and could vary between 14 and 20 weeks. The ‘CARES Act’ introduced three new programs that temporarily expand these benefits for unemployed Georgians. Additionally, the Georgia Department of Labor (GDOL) approved emergency rules to provide aid to unemployment insurance applicants.

The Federal Pandemic Unemployment Compensation Program (FPUC)
The ‘CARES Act’ created the Federal Pandemic Unemployment Compensation program to provide an additional $600 per week to individuals that qualify for any of the state or federal unemployment compensation programs. As is the case with other paid unemployment benefits, FPUC payments are considered taxable income and are subject to state and federal taxes. Individuals already receiving unemployment benefits will begin to receive the FPUC supplement the week of April 13, 2020 and the program will retroactively apply to all eligible weeks beginning with the week of March 30, 2020.

The Pandemic Emergency Unemployment Compensation Program (PEUC)
Under the PUEC program, qualified individuals can receive up to 13 weeks of unemployment benefits in addition to the maximum in Georgia; the maximum is temporarily set at 26 weeks per a GDOL emergency rule (discussed below). The costs of the PEUC program, including all implementation and administrative expenses, are 100% federally funded. After receiving federal guidance on April 10, 2020, the GDOL is currently developing the new PEUC system for the state. The GDOL will send a notification and instructions to any individual who potentially qualifies for a PEUC claim.

Pandemic Unemployment Assistance (PUA)
With the passage of the ‘CARES Act’, the following individuals who previously would not have qualified for unemployment benefits are now eligible:

- Self-employed workers
- Gig workers
- Form 1099 independent contractors
• Employees of churches
• Employees of non-profits
• Individuals with limited work history

Before being considered for federal PUA benefits, an applicant must first be determined ineligible for state unemployment benefits. Once an applicant is deemed ineligible, they may apply for and receive PUA benefits for up to 39 weeks. The benefits paid are based on Georgia’s existing weekly benefit amounts. The federal benefits are available retroactively for unemployed weeks beginning on or after January 27, 2020 and will end on or before December 31, 2020. GDOL opened up applications and instructions for PUA benefits on April 12th, 2020. Emergency Rules Approved By the Georgia Department of Labor
On March 19, 2020, the Georgia Department of Labor approved an emergency rule that requires an employer to file partial claims online on behalf of their employees during any week that an employee works less than their regular full- or part-time schedule due to the COVID-19 emergency. Employers that fail to comply are liable to pay the full amount of benefits to the employee. The rule applies to any claims filed on or after March 14, 2020 and is in effect until July 14, 2020, or the passage of a subsequent rule. The rule can be found on the GDOL website: https://dol.georgia.gov/blog-post/2020-03-20/emergency-rules-adopted-03-19-20.

The GDOL adopted two additional emergency rules on March 26, 2020. The first states that GDOL will not count the first $300 in wages earned by an individual receiving unemployment benefits against the benefits being received. This will allow a qualified individual to receive unemployment benefits while also earning additional wages. Any amount over the $300 will then be deducted from the individual’s unemployment benefits. The second rule extends the maximum number of weeks an individual can claim unemployment from 14 to 26. This will temporarily replace the previous maximum that could vary from 14 to 20 weeks and the method of determining the maximum based on seasonal adjusted unemployment rates. These two rules can be found on the GDOL website: https://dol.georgia.gov/blog-post/2020-03-26/emergency-rules-adopted-03-26-20.
