

Rep. Ginny Ehrhart
District 36

Biography

Representative Ehrhart represents House District 36, which includes portions of Cobb County. Ginny has resided in Cobb County for over 40 years. As the daughter of a U.S. Army Lieutenant Colonel, she was raised on U.S. Army bases, eventually settling with her family in Cobb County. She attended Osborne High School and graduated from Auburn University with a degree in international trade. She taught high school economics and American government and also home schooled her children before starting her successful business that designs, manufactures and markets home décor and linens with a southern theme to thousands of retail stores across the country. Southern Sisters Enterprises, LLC, is located on Dallas Highway in West Cobb.

Ginny is a frequent speaker on regional and national television and radio, writing and teaching about the art of southern cuisine and hospitality. She was a television chef and home life consultant for Family Net Television, authoring two cookbooks, Sunday in the South and Seasons in the South. She currently hosts the highly regarded weekly lifestyle show, Southern Sisters Radio on 920AM Atlanta, with her studio located at The Battery overlooking Sun Trust Stadium.

Ginny advocates for families and speaks to audiences on a wide range of topics, including domestic violence. She most recently organized a grassroots group, which monitored the progress of Cobb County's school bus stop arm law.

Ginny's merits as a hands-on small business owner and entrepreneur influence her conservative-minded policy platform. Public health and safety, transportation and education are priorities. She brings a broad, pragmatic and solution-oriented perspective to public service that she believes citizens want under the Gold Dome.

Ginny is a member of NorthStar Church in Acworth. She and her husband, Earl, live in Powder Springs and are parents to six grown children, one granddaughter and a talented Australian shepherd named Dixie.
